be prepared

Every adult, regardless of age or health status, should be prepared for care.

You never know when a life-altering event may make it necessary for someone to help keep your affairs in order.

Naming a Power of Attorney or creating an Advance Healthcare Directive is the first step to ensuring peace of mind during a stressful time.

Once you're incapacitated, it might be too late to notarize. That could mean a long, costly legal process instead.

Don't wait for the worst.
Be ready for it.

ready to notarize?

1. I have my documents & have reviewed them.
2. All signers are of sound mind and can provide informed consent.
3. All signers have valid ID or Credible Witness.
4. I know who my witnesses are, if needed.
5. I know where I want to meet.

Notarization requires all signers have the ability to provide informed consent.

Consult an elder law attorney if this is not possible, such as for folks with a diagnosis of dementia or Alzheimer's, or for Memory Care placement.
